& Ms. Pearl Hester

THOMAS C. QUICK married FRANCES WOODWARD in GA. She was a HARREL and had one son, THOMAS JEFFERSON HARREL. They migrated to MS and lived in Jasper County and later moved on to Jones County. They had eight children.¹

He enlisted on 27 July 1862 at Jones Co. MS., for three years by Captain McLemore. On 9 Oct., 1862 he was left at Harrodsburg, KY. by order of the surgeon because he was sick.

On 12 Nov. 1862, he was listed on a prisoner of war record saying he was shipped to Vicksburg. A receipt, not dated, was given Maj. N.G. Watts, C. S. A. agent for exchange, to Capt. W. W. Bickford, USA agent for exchange, for Confederate prisoners of war received on board steamer Metropolitan near Vicksburg, MS, Dec. 4, 1862. This record says he was captured 10 Oct 1862, at Harrodsburg, KY. He is described as 5 feet 11 inches tall, with grey eyes, black hair, and a dark complexion. It is noted that he was sick.

He served as a private in Company B of the 27th Reg't of the MS Inf.²

He died on 11 Dec 1862, and was buried at the Vicksburg City Cemetery in Potter's Field. (The Daughters of the Confederacy has purchased tombstones for the Confederate Soldiers in this cemetery and are now in the process of erecting these.)

REMINISCENCES.

These men and a mismanaging husband could ruin the fortune of any child. All I have to say to such, is to keep a copy of this on hand, and when it comes to their turn to leave for a place which they will most assuredly dread, say to their children, should they have any to leave, that honesty is the best policy.

In my next, which will be in a day or two, I will give my age, or what I think it to be—a short sketch of my family on both sides—the wars which I have been engaged in—the fights that I witnessed, (which were but light)—what the S in my name stands for—my shipping on board the Epervier, and my discharge from her—my settlement in Alabama and Arkansas,—and all that you have requested to know; and I think you will find it much more interesting than this will be.

Yours, truly,
T. S. WOODWARD.

WHEELING, WINN PARISH, LA., }
December 20, 1858. }

J. J. HOOPER, ESQ.

Dear Sir:—A few days back I wrote you a letter, in which I promised, as early as possible, to give you a little sketch of my family, my age, and also the little wars that I was engaged in in my younger days. My name is not as common as Smith, but it is to be met with in all the States of this Union, as well as in many parts of Europe. Whether the name is Norman, Saxon, or German, originally, I do not know. But the name seems to have been derived from the occupation followed by those who bore it, at an early day. Woodward, one who protects the forest. My early ancestors of the name came from England, and settled in Maryland, under George Calverton, Baron of Baltimore. And near Annapolis, my great grandfather, Thomas Woodward, was born, and raised in Maryland. He raised a family of children by a first wife—she died, and he went into Fairfax county, Virginia, and married my great grandmother, Elizabeth Simpson, the descendant of a Scotch family—and Simpson is my middle name. Thomas Woodward and Elizabeth Simpson had one son, and called him Thomas, who was my grandfather. The old man returned to Maryland to move his other children to Virginia; he died on his visit to Maryland, and never returned, nor did his Maryland children ever get to Fairfax, but some years after their father's death, some of them went to Dinwiddie county, Virginia, and some to North Carolina; the North Carolina branch of the family has lost one letter in the name—they spell the name with one W, instead of two. I could name many of the older ones of most of the branches of the family, but it would take up too much time, as well as room, for a paper of this sort. My great grandmother remained a widow for some years, when she married a man by the name of Robinson, and raised two sons, William and John, both of whom I have seen, as well as their mother. My mother carried me and my sister to South Carolina when we were small children; the old lady was then living, and from what I have learned since, she was then about 112 years of age—she died two years after. It has been said that Robinson neglected my grandfather's education, and he was suffered to grow up very much in the way that one of his grand sons has since. At an early age he showed some inclination to become a soldier, and was in the French war, and a part of the time with Gen. Washington, who was then a Major or a Colonel. My grandfather was a Captain in that service, and was a much older man than Gen. Washington, and from what I have been able to learn from Parson Weems and others, the old man was looked upon as a good fighter. He married at an early age, a woman by the name of Jemima Collins, and they had four daughters and two sons, John and William. His wife died while he was in the service. At the close of the French war he was ordered on the frontier of South Carolina, leaving his children in Virginia. While in South Carolina, he became acquainted with my grandmother, who was his second wife. And it is the blood of that grandmother which courses through my veins, that in early life tempted me to quit what the world terms civilized and christian man.

I will now give you as accurately as I can the true history of that branch of my family. At the very earliest settlement of South Carolina by Europeans, and at the time those tribes of Indians that inhabited the lower parts of the Carolinas and Georgia, viz: the Sowanokas, Uchees, Yemacraws and others, a European, either of French or Spanish origin, by the names of Silves, (I think the name was originally spelled Silvester, but pronounced Silves,) came to Beaufort, S. C., took an Indian woman for a wife, and raised a family of children. About the time Silves's eldest daughter arrived to womanhood, an Englishman by the name of Thomas Stokes came to the country and turned Indian trader. Stokes took the daughter of Silves for a wife, and raised four children by her, two sons and two daughters, and one of them was my grandmother—her name was Elizabeth. She married one John May. The other daughter, whose name I have forgotten, (though I was much better acquainted with her than I was with my grandmother,) married a man by the name of Joiner.

The two sons were Thomas and Silvester. They were both Whigs in the American Revolution, and in a skirmish with some British and Tories, at the old ridge, not far from the line of Edgefield and Lexington Districts, S. C., they were both badly wounded, and escaped at the time, but were necessarily forced, from their wounds, to go to a settlement to have them dressed. They were betrayed and taken prisoners by the British, and if not hanged at the same time with Col. Haynes, they were just before or after.

My grandmother raised three children by John May, two sons and a daughter, when May died. She then married my grandfather, and settled in the Fairfield District—they raised three sons and three daughters—my father was the oldest of the young set of children. My

William Woodward
(1859 - 1939)

William Woodward was born in Seekonk, Massachusetts on May 1, 1859. He was a multi-talented individual and was known in the art and academic world as an art teacher, painter, etcher, architect, potter, and preservationist. Woodward has been called the "Father of Art in New Orleans."

Woodward's interest in art began after viewing the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. He studied at the Rhode Island School of Design (1877-1883), the Massachusetts Normal Art School (1883-1886 via correspondence), and at the Académie Julian in Paris with Boulanger and Lefebvre (1884). William Woodward arrived in New Orleans in 1884. There he taught art as an associate at the new Tulane College and High School. Woodward retired as Professor Emeritus of the Newcomb School of Art in 1921. He moved to Biloxi, Mississippi in 1924, after a laudable career in Louisiana.

Among his accomplishments, Woodward helped to organize Newcomb College (1887), founded the New Orleans Art Pottery where he hired Joseph Fortune Meyer (1848-1931) and George Ohr (1857-1918), assisted in the design of the early buildings on the Tulane Campus (1894), protested the proposed destruction of the Cabildo (1895), founded the Tulane School of Architecture (1907), and was associated with the Vieux Carré Commission's efforts to preserve the district's historical architecture (1936).

In 1921, Woodward fell off a scaffold while painting a mural in the United Fruit Company building. He damaged his spine confining him to a wheelchair for the remainder of his life. After an automobile tour of New England in 1923, the Woodward retired to Biloxi where he was active in the art community until his death on November 17, 1939.

Ellsworth Woodward
(1861-1939)

Ellsworth Woodward was a younger brother of William Woodward. He was born at Seekonk, Massachusetts on July 14, 1861. After graduating from the Rhode Island School of Design, Woodward went to Munich, Germany where he studied at the studios of Samuel Richards, Carl Marr, and Fehr. He joined his brother, William, at Tulane in 1885.

Ellsworth Woodward is credited with founding the outstanding Newcomb School of Art, where he was director for 44 years, and for being the guiding light behind Newcomb Pottery, which has won national and international awards. He was largely responsible for getting Isaac Delgado to donate the funding for the establishment of the Delgado Museum, which is now a wing of the New Orleans Museum of Art. Woodward served as president of the museum Board from 1925 to 1934.

As a teacher, Woodward had the capacity to inspire pupils to work at their maximum ability. He appeared to be much more stern than he was in reality. In his retirement years, Professor Woodward was able to create and expand as an artist more so than when he taught the subject. He died at New Orleans on February 28, 1939.

Sawmill Explosion in Mississippi—Two Persons Killed and Five Wounded.

From the New-Orleans Picayune, July 27.

We are informed that on Friday evening last, 23d inst., the steam sawmill of Mr. VAN WAGNER, of Pascagoula, Miss., blew up with a tremendous explosion and very disastrous effect. The machinery was totally broken up and scattered in every direction, and several persons, four white and three black, were involved in the destruction. The engineer, JAMES MARTIN, and the fireman, WOODWARD, were fatally hurt, and died the following night. The rest, though badly scalded or wounded, may possibly recover. The most doubtful case is that of Mrs. COUNSEL, white, who happened to be passing about a hundred yards in front of the mill, when one of the boilers, lifted from its place and shot like an arrow, brushed her in its course with such violence as to hurl her to a distance aside, breaking her left arm and thigh bones near the upper joints, and the right arm near the wrist. This boiler, having cut down two trees as large as a schooner's mast, lodged against a large live oak tree, one hundred and fifty-five yards from the mill. The cause of the disaster is not understood, as all the managers were regularly on duty, and the engineer had stopped the running but a few minutes to fix the tackling of one of the bands. Altogether, it was a melancholy exhibition of the power of rabid steam.

Dear Mr. Walley:

I received your much appreciated letter yesterday. It was the second response to my request for information on the Woodward family which appeared in the Spring, 1978 issue of the Mississippi Genealogical Exchange.

The other response was from a fifth cousin, Robert Woodward of Memphis, Tennessee who had traced "our" Woodward family back 10 generations to 1734 in Virginia.

My great-great-great grandfather Elisha Woodward settled in Greene County, Miss. around 1818 having ~~immigrated~~ migrated from Edgecombe Co., North Carolina. Elisha's direct line descendants remained in Greene County until 1937 when my father (then age 20) migrated to Jamaica, New York where I was born in 1947.

I have visited Greene and George Counties, Miss. in 1950, 1958, 1970 and 1978, the last two trips were primarily for genealogical research. Unfortunately I have as yet not determined the date or place of Elisha's death or burial. He was born in 1794 and apparently died between 1850+1860 in Jackson Co., Miss.

I had not heard of the cemetery in Perry County that you speak of. There is another Woodward cemetery for my ancestors in George Co. and still another smaller one nearby where my great-great grandfather, Jesse Woodward is buried.

I believe it was either Elisha or Jesse who dropped the w from Woodward making it Woodard.

I do not have any Holliman ancestors but I wish you good luck in your search.

I would appreciate it ^{if} you would send me the address of Ben + Jean Strickland so that I ^{may} can correspondence with them directly.

I certainly appreciate your thoughtfulness and would be pleased to make your acquaintance if you are ever in the Washington, D.C. ^{area}. I have enclosed my business card and a self-addressed-stamped envelope for your convenience.

I am almost forgot to mention that I have a cousin, Doyle McLeod, who is a school teacher in Pensacola and an uncle, Aubrey Woodard, who is an asphalt contractor in Lakeland.

Best wishes for a joyous holiday season.

Sincerely yours,
Cecil L. Woodard, II

Dear Mrs. Nicholson,

I was so glad to get your letter. It is always fun to write to people interested in family history.

I think we are talking about two different families. The Woodward family and the Woodard family of North Carolina were the same family some generations back but they are not the same in the generation you are talking about. I will send you a zerox of what Thomas S. Woodward said about the two families in his Reminiscences in the 1850's. That is my only knowledge of the North Carolina Woodwards.

The Benjamin May who married Mary Tyson is not my Benjamin May. That Benjamin May was from North Carolina. My Benjamin May was born in Virginia where his mother, who was the widow of John May, married Thomas Woodward and came to Fairfield County, S. C. Mary Stokes May Woodward had nine children. Three were: Thomas May, Benjamin May and Sarah May Riley. Six were: Thomas Woodward, Henry Woodward, Joseph Woodward, Elizabeth Woodward McMorries, Jane Woodward Freeman and Lucy Woodward Augustin. The Benjamin May I am descended from, stepson of Thomas Woodward the Regulator, married Mary Harrison, daughter of Burr Harrison and Ann Dargan Harrison.

So many of the families had about twelve children and all twelve children had big families and named their children the same names and it is hard to distinguish between them. That apparently happened with the Woodard and Woodward families as well as the May families. There are several May families that I have been unable to establish a connection between.

Hope this helps you in some way. I do not have anything on the Benjamin May from North Carolina who married Mary Tyson although I have seen their names in the DAR Patriot index and wondered about them. I'd love to have a little bit more information about them if you have time to jot it down. Maybe they do connect in Virginia. I have never been able to identify John May who married Elizabeth Stokes. I did find a reference to a John May who was in the army during the French and Indian War who "was left wounded along the side of the road" and I've wondered if that was the one. I have them all from the time Elizabeth married Thomas Woodward pretty well documented. There were May families in Virginia from the 1600's but I haven't tied in to them.

Please let me hear from you again.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth

He may be able to help you if R. W. Ruffin and Jesse Woodward were part of "our" Woodward line.

Thanks again for the help.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Strickland,

I received your name and address from Harry Walley of Destin, Florida. I am writing to you on the slim chance that you may have a record of a headstone for my great-great-grandparents: Elisha Woodward (1794-1850/60) and Susan (Landers?) Woodward (1798-1850/60).

Elisha and Susan are shown on 1820, 1830 and 1840 census of Greene County, Mississippi but appear on the 1850 census ~~they appear on~~ ~~the census~~ for Jackson Co., Miss. The 1860 census for Greene and Jackson Co. ^{do} not list them. Chances are they died in Jackson County between 1850 and 1860. They could have died in Greene or George Counties (formed from part of Greene + other counties).

I know its a long shot but I thought you may have come accross their tombstones in your recording of cemeteries. If not, do you have any clues as to how I may determine the date and place of their death and burial?

I have another great-great-grandfather, John McLean, who died in February, 1850 in ^{Jackson} ~~Green~~ Co., Miss. but have been unable to determine his place of burial.

I have found the burial places of my grandparents, great-grandparents and great-great grandparents on a trip to Mississippi in October, 1978. I took photographs of them.

Hope to hear from you soon. A self-addressed stamped envelope is enclosed for your convenience.

Sincerely,
Cecil L. Woodward, II
